

Monday, October 10, 2005, 00:00

Model aircraft simulate WWII attack

Pictures: Matthew Mirabelli

Many model aircraft enthusiasts spent the day at Hal Far yesterday for the annual open day of the Hal Far Model Flying Association.

Association public relations officer Jesmond Bajada estimated that about 1,000 people turned up.

Association members gave non-stop model aeroplane and helicopter flying displays and a static display of model aircraft and helicopters.

A novelty was the simulation of a World War II air attack using model aircraft.

A display was also given by a Bell 212 of the Italian Military Mission.

UK visitor John Blake also gave a demonstration of his model fixed wing aircraft and helicopters.

Trending Articles

Sponsored by Revcontent

This Simple Skin Trick Changed My Life Forever

This Shocking Skin Care Trick Changed My Life Forever

Simple Way To Tighten Sagging Skin

Could You Still Love Them? - 15 Child Stars Who Ruined Their Faces

What Hitler's Son Did with his Life is Shocking

16 Amazing Pictures You Won't Believe Are Real - But Actually Are!

See our Comments Policy

Comments are submitted under the express understanding and condition that the editor may, and is authorised to, disclose any/all of the above personal information to any person or entity requesting the information for the purposes of legal action on grounds that such person or entity is aggrieved by any comment so submitted.

Please allow some time for your comment to be moderated.